

ABSTRACT

A shell structure with a circuit unit is proposed. The shell has an inner surface on which the circuit unit is arranged for providing a modular structure and accomplishing easy design and manufacturing, thereby reducing the numbers of electronic components and the assembly process steps and saving the manufacturing cost and material.